Scott says you use a thermal protective agent when applying heat to protect your paint (and your bones). 22 of 40 David M. Benett / Getty Images for Topshop When we think of curtain bang, we think of Alexa Chung. Here she styled them with shady, messy waves and a cropped shoulder-length cut. Two things are characterized by this hairstyle: texture and attention to detail, Stylianou notes. Simply put, it just works. Ask your hairdresser for some subtle layers of freehand and bring the layers to life at the end with a dry texture spray. Cool Girl (30) by Sam McKnight is my favorite, she adds. 23 of 40 Jamie McCarthy / Getty Images Take a close look and you'll see that RiRi's gives her lap and mid-to-centre fringe height tightly at the roots. In addition, her wet-looking curls are so red carpet. Stylianou recommends spraying a little Nuxe Huile Prodigieuse® oil spray (No. 37) onto the roots and combing down to get a similar finish. If your hair is a tight curl, Devacurl Super Stretch Mask (30) will help to relax it, she notes. 24 of 40 Gregg DeGuire / Getty Images We can't tell you if blondes have more fun than brunettes, but Jessica Alba's chic ombre may. Their shoulder-length cut will not strain finer hair textures, and the center waves will falsify the volume in all the right places. This hairstyle is ideal for diamond or oval face shapes. To create this finish, I recommend T3 Convertible Collection. They have a wide variety of different pliers, all of which will create this style, says Stylianou. Rotate the hair once in a barrel, wrap it loosely around the pliers, and leave it for a few seconds. Then pull out at the end as it cools down. Douse hair with a dry texturingspray for a matte look like Katy Perry. 39 by 40 Gilbert Carrasquillo / Getty Images A messy fringe and layered shoulder-length cut is all you need to look effortlessly cool like Halle Berry. Work in Eva NYC lazy Jane Air Dry Shampoo (No. 12) to achieve maximum thickness and texture during air drying. 40 out of 40 JB Lacroix / Getty Images Fine-haired people, listen: If you don't want to give full throttle with face-framing layers, opt for a longer one-length cut with light face-framing layers. Scott says it keeps the hair looking thick, but the addition of shorter pieces around the face there is style. Style.
